Molly Abraham, Detroit News Restaurant Critic: Cleveland chef Michael Symon was brought in by the management of the reborn Book Cadillac to preside over a restaurant that is pretty much dedicated to meat, from dry-aged steaks and chops to a rotisserie "beast of the day," which might be a suckling pig, a goat or a baby lamb slowly revolving on the spit. The setting is a very contemporary room done up in subdued colors, with well-spaced linen-covered tables. There is also a handsome bar where patrons may order appetizers and it offers a "Cocktail Hour" on week days that includes bargain prices from 4-6 p.m.
